Structure of the data:

The data consists of a set of <record>s, each of which contains an <entry> and a <listing> for that <entry>. These main structural elements have substructures as follows:

```
<record>
  <entry>
    <concise> <lifespan>
    <source>
  <listing>
    <non-correspondence>
      <[category]/>
      <item>
        <date>
        <xref>
        <number>
    <correspondence>
      <[category]/>
      <item>
        <date>
        <xref>
        <number> <mentioned>
      (see [internal cross-reference to another <entry>]) OR <number>
```

-----
Some comments on each of these elements:

Entry:

An <entry> can be in principle for anything (a place, an animal, a plant, a publication, a social institution, etc), though most of them are for people.

Some <entry>s are for more than one person (eg multiple authors of a book or article). The symbol &&| in an entry indicates that the term following (eg the second author) will ultimately have an <entry> of his/her/its own; some do already, but this feature is not yet complete or consistent.

Occasionally, an entry contains the symbol +nl (deriving from a `newline' instruction in the version prepared for printing) as a different means from the above for handling instances of multiple authorship, eg:

```
<record><entry> Adnitt H!W <concise> Henry William <lifespan> fl 1880s--1890s
</lifespan> `History of Shrewsbury School' 1889
</concise><source>(IBN)</source>; hon sec Shropshire Horticultural Society in 1897
+nl Adnitt H!W and &&| Naunton W!W
</entry><listing><correspondence>
<to/> Darwin W!E
  <item>
    <date> 1897.08.03 </date>
    <number> Dar 219.3: 2 </number></item>
</correspondence></listing></record>
```

-----

Concise:

The <concise> field will be especially likely to occur if the <entry> is for a person; it contains things like forenames/titles, <lifespan>, and a word or two summarising the person's biography.

Some <entry>s have further (untagged) biographical description after the end of the <concise> portion.

Lifespan:

The <lifespan> dates are year-only (no months/days). They were given a specific tag within the <entry> in part so I could easily use them dates where desirable in supplying crude limitations on open-ended item-<date> ranges. An arbitrary 100-year cutoff is used in cases where one lifespan date is known but the other isn't. These cutoffs are designated with [[...]]. In cases where neither life-date is known, the <date>s of any dated <item>s in the <listing> are used to provide an `alive in such-and-such a decade' substitute, eg `fl 1860s'.

Source:

The <source> acknowledges where necessary the origin of the information in the biographical portion of the <entry>. Where no <source> is given, the source of the information is the listed <item>s themselves [except, of course, those cases where I've left the source out by mistake ...]. Sources are abbreviated - wherever possible to a mere acronym, following the usages in the Calendar/Correspondence, though there are some new ones.

-----

Listing:

The <listing> for an <entry> is divided into <non-correspondence>, <correspondence> and other <mentioned> instances of the <entry>-term.

The <non-correspondence> is divided into the categories

```
<abstract/>
<draft/>
```

<figure/> <datasheet/>
<legal/> <note/>
<photo/> [which includes some other pictorial matter]
<printed/>
<miscellaneous/>.

The <correspondence> is divided into the categories <to/> and <from/>. All correspondence listed under entry X as `to Y' is also listed under entry Y as `from X'. This duplication reflects the origin of the current fileset in the material put together for the printed version, though from a database point of view the `Y from X' side of it is strictly redundant. However, when dealing with the raw material in the fileset as such, it is hugely convenient to retain the whole of the listing for each <entry> ready-collected, despite the redundancy.

The <mentioned> field has been used for occasional internal cross-refs between parts of <entry>s, but mostly consists just of a list of catalogue <number>s where the entrant has some passing mention.

Item:

Under each category-marker comes the actual list of <item>s, each of which contains a <date> and a catalogue <number>, and where relevant contains a <xref> to the identity-tag of the item in the system(s) used by other Darwin-related project(s). Many <item>s, especially non-correspondence, have a piece of descriptive text between the <item> tag and the <date>.

-----
Date:

All <date>s have a fully digital canonical or `proper' form, using the basic style

yyyy.mm.dd
eg
1850.06.25

Wholly undated items are digitised as 9999.99.99, partly undated as 9999.mm.dd, yyyy.00.dd, yyyy.mm.00, yyyy.00.00 etc as appropriate.

In many cases a date contains editorial-intervention markers, viz. square brackets and/or question-marks, in principle almost anywhere in the string, eg

[1850?].06.[25]
18[50?].06.[2]5
[18]50[.06.?]2[5]

etc.

Some dates can only be expressed in the form of ranges. There are two types of range: continuous, symbolised with the marker --, eg

1850.06.12--1852.08.25

which comprises every day between the two termini; and discontinuous, symbolised with the marker `-|-`, eg

```
1850.06.12-|-1852.08.25

which comprises the 12--25 of each of the months .06.--.08. in each of the years 1850--1852, ie a set of 9 discrete 'globules' of mini-ranges.

Thus there are only 3 basic 'proper-date' types,

yyyy.mm.dd
yyyy.mm.dd--yyyy.mm.dd
yyyy.mm.dd-|-yyyy.mm.dd
```

Any number of components conforming to one or other of these three types can be linked by ``&`` to form the actual `<date>` of an item.

Any `<date>` may if necessary have a `<display/>` form differing from the canonical 'proper' form, eg

```
<date> [9999.99.99] <display/> [nd] </date>
<date> [1871?].09.10-|- [1874?].09.10 <display/> [1871--1874?].09.10 </date>
```

etc. Any date containing a verbal component or qualifier necessarily requires such treatment, eg

```
<date> [1850.05.26]--[9999.99.99] <display/> [1850.05.25.after] </date>
```

The first, or in 'unitary' cases only, component of the date is the sortpoint. Dates involving 'before' and 'circa' are thus treated as a combination of "sortpoint & range", eg

```
<date> [1850][.05.24] & [1850][.01.01]--[1850][.05.24]
<display/> [1850][.05.25.before] </date>

to ensure that ranges are always expressed as chronologically forward-running; further examples (presuming a default of +/-4 for 'circa'),

```
<date> [1850.05.25] & [1850.05.21]--[1850.05.29]
<display/> [1850.05.25.ca] </date>
```

```
<date> [1971.01.00] & [[1885.00.00]]--[1971.01.00]
<display/> [1971.02.00.before] </date>
```

```
<date> [9999].02.19 & [[1851]].02.19-|- [[1928]].02.19
<display/> [ny].02.19 </date>
```

```
<date> [9999].03.22 & [[1845]].03.22-|- [[1912]].03.31
& [[1845]].04.01-|- [[1912]].04.25
<display/> [ny].easter </date>
```

```
<date> [1890.11.00]-|- [1899.03.00] <display/> [1890s.winter] </date>
```

(the double-brackets in some of these being instances where open-ended ranges have been arbitrarily delimited by secondary information such as outer-dates derived from `<lifespan>`s, etc. These secondary editorial interventions are always distinguished by the use of double-brackets, which are not used anywhere else.)

The complex dates in the current fileset have all be analysed into an appropriate set of discontinuous ranges, as in the last 3 examples above.

Beyond this superficial laying out of various typical kinds of output, the process by which the analysis of complex dates is conducted (ie the manner in which the <display/> form is edited into the `proper' form) is impossible to describe briefly, and is hideously non-trivial.

Xref:

The <xref> cross-references an item where relevant to the identity-number it has been given by some other Darwin-related project or system. These are at present the Calendar/Correspondence (abbreviated as CAL), the Marginalia (vol 2 in detail (MV2), vol 3 only in outline (MV3)), the Notebooks (NBK), and the English Heritage tags for Down House items (EH), but will in future include <xref>s to such things as Desomd King-Hele's new edition of Erasmus Darwin's correspondence, and to David Kohn's edition of Charles Darwin's remaining unpublished scientific notes.

-----

Number:

The catalogue <number> field is self-explanatory.

-----

Other points:

Accents:

Each accented letter is preceded by $, with the following symbols after the accented letter:

<	acute
>	grave
%	umlaut/dieresis
~	cedilla (after c); tilde (otherwise)
@	circumflex
caron	caron ring	ring

Special characters:

$=163$$	pound-sign
$$	non-printing character, normally ending a sequence of specials; any freestanding ones [ie `space $$ space'] can be deleted
$sp{$=97}	alpha
$sp{$=108}	lambda
$sp{$=110}	nu
$sp{$=176}	degree-sign
$sc{...}	small capitals

$e [ie `space $e space'] fullout right, legacy from the printed version, should be deleted

An exclamation mark often appears sandwiched between pairs of capital letters, especially initials in personal names. This coded for a specific amount of white space smaller than a full inter-word space in the printed version. All other exclamation marks are `real'.
